Dangers of seeking the truth

Joe Mazor with the Psychological Stress Evaluator

PLEASANTON — Does former president Richard M. Nixon really know who caused the highly-controversial 18-minute tape erasure?

Investigator Joseph Mazor, an internationally-known expert with the Psychological Stress Evaluator, says his voice analysis of the Nixon-Frost interview tapes indicate Nixon himself didn't make the erasure. But personal opinion, and Mazor did all the voice analysis, tells Mazor that the ex-president knows who did.

Mazor, who discussed his work with the voice stress evaluator equipment Wednesday in Bob Holland's sociology class at Amador Valley High School, reportedly "has a price on his head" and, admittedly, is responsible for a number of persons being convicted of various crimes and being sentenced to San Quentin.

The 38-year old private investigator has voice analyzed, via the PSE, many of the principals in famous criminal cases of the past decade or more, including James Earl Ray and Lee Harvey Oswald.

Vallecitos woes

Now county asked to pull G.E.'s plug

HAYWARD — Critics of GE's nuclear reactors in Sunol have opened a second front by asking Alameda County government to shut down the reactors at Vallecitos Nuclear Center.

The Tri - Cities Ecology Center, based in Fremont, asked County Zoning Administrator Richard Flynn to set a public hearing on possible revocation of the conditional permit which allows GE to have the facility on unincorporated land five miles south of Pleasanton.

The ecology center also joined other groups in asking the federal Nuclear Regulatory Commission to conduct public hearings on whether GE should lose its federal license for the reactors.

The NRC this week shut down the major reactor at GE because of discovery of a minor, but active, earthquake fault 200 feet away from the reactor. However, the reactor could be turned on again if pleas from GE management are successful. In any event, NRC will schedule a public hearing in the Bay Area in the next month or two to hear critical arguments about why the federal government should shut down the Vallecitos plant permanently.

The center approached the county because of two important environmental considerations it feels falls within the jurisdiction of the county. One is the danger of an active earthquake fault recently discovered 200 feet away from the reactors, as well as the major Calaveras fault 1.5 miles away.

The structures at Vallecitos can withstand a quake of 6.5 on the Richter scale, but the Calaveras fault is capable of a 7.3 shake, say GE's critics.

The ecology center also is afraid that radiation could leak into Alameda Creek. The stream flows into the underground water supply for Fremont and Newark.

Flynn has turned the matter over to Building Official Dick Taugher. If Taugher sees anything valid in the ecology center's charges, he must turn his findings over to Flynn who would conduct a public hearing.

Flynn has the power to revoke GE's use permit, or change it so it expires in a certain number of years and then would be renewed or denied. GE's permit was issued in 1957 and has no time limit.

If Flynn turned down a use permit for GE, the firm could appeal the decision to the board of supervisors.

Fault was no secret

Studies on file at the Nuclear Regulatory Commission's office show that evidence of the fault discovered near the General Electric Vallecitos Nuclear Center was documented as far back as 1958.

Under orders from the NRC, the center shut down its large nuclear reactor today because of a new fault located 200 feet from rac reactor discovered by the U.S. Geological Survey last month.

But studies show General Electric had indications that fault existed before the center was constructed 19 years ago.

Lab site no threat to guards

OAKLAND — A preliminary investigation of conditions at an explosives test site 15 miles east of Livermore shows no evidence that toxic or radioactive substances are endangering workers, a Department of Energy spokesman said yesterday.

A guard who has worked at Site 300 for 18 years filed a complaint charging that radioactive materials released from earlier explosives tests had contaminated the area. He said that many guards who had to watch test packages in the area during eight-hour shifts had contracted cancer allegedly caused by past releases.

Allen Carrico, an industrial safety engineer for DOE, said yesterday that initial conclusions reached regarding the charges indicated that no such hazards existed.

Records show that levels of radioactivity had never exceeded maximum allowable limits, Carrico said.

Department of Energy regulations state that a guard must inspect test packages at least once during any eight-hour hift. The agency tightened its rules in the case of Site 300, Carrico said, maintaining guards on the classified materials continuously.

The guard had requested a list of all toxic materials used at the facility, Carrico said, but since the area was a research center, there would be many types of materials present. Guards would have no reason to come in contact with many of these, he said.

Fair guides suggest aid for parade

The publicity and entertainment committees of the Alameda County Fair Association board last night approved a recommendation that would revive the parade at county fair time, after a one year absence.

Committee member DeWitt Wilson moved that the County Fair Association contribute a maximum of $3,000 to help defray expenses with Pleasanton Lions Club organizing and sponsoring the parade.

The recommendation will go to the full board at its Nov. 8 meeting. The motion stipulates the parade by held in conjunction with the opening of the fair, that the parade disband outside the fairgrounds proper and the expense of insurance and printing costs be taken care of with the $3,000.

The 40-year-old parade was not held this past June as no community group came forward to pick up sponsorship.

Lions Club representative Ben Fernandez indicated the City of Pleasanton had assured its support.

The larger question of a fair association contract with the county remains to be settled, though a determination on a five-year pact could be forthcoming by early November.

Detroit beats Warriors

The Golden State Warriors dropped a 123-107 National Basketball Association contest to the Detroit Pistons last night in the Motor City. The Warriors, despite the absence of center Robert Parish, stayed close to the Pistons most of the game.

In fact, they had closed the gap to 107-103 with a little over three minutes to play but, with guard Ralph Simpson continuing to hold a hot hand, Detroit outscored the Warriors, 16-4, down the stretch to annex their fourth win of the season. The Warriors are 3-2.

State revenues shared

State revenues shared with counties and cities totaled $88,069,476 for October, according to state controller Kenneth Cory. The monies consisted of $6,130,210 from the cigarette tax, $57,726,470 from the highway users tax and $24,152,796 from motor vehicle license fees.

Livermore received $77,163; $10,443 from the cigarette tax, $31,726 from the highway tax and $34,994 from licenses.

Teacher pact vote today

Trustees of the Livermore Joint Unified School District and the Livermore Education Association are sche uled today to vote on ratification of a tentative contract agreement reached late Monday night.

Bargaining teams issued a joint statement at midnight Monday announcing the pact but not releasing details. The teachers have scheduled a mass meeting for this afternoon at Junction Avenue School and the school board has a special meeting tonight at 7 p.m. at the education center.

The tentative agreement was reached after 16 continuous hours of talks Monday.

The had resumed in September after a summer layoff while both sides waited for results of the legislature's school finance bill.

EBMUD thinks so

Long drought may be over

OAKLAND — Chances are good that the state's long no-rain spell will come to an end next year.

The East Bay Municipal Utility District is predicting that there's a 62 percent chance that 1978 will have an average rain and snowfall.

They're giving only 2 percent odds that 1978 will be a repeat of 1977 with far below average runoff. The district is only giving 13 percent odds, however, that the runoff will be better than average.

Even if it starts raining cats and dogs, don't think the current drought is over and the district's current 35 percent cutback rationing program will stop.

EBMUD expects it would take betwen one and two years of average runoff to refill the district's badly depleted water reservoirs, and until those are full, the board won't consider the drought officially ended.

However, on Jan 1, 1978 and April 1, 1978, the district will take surveys of snowfall and might make adjustments in the current rationing plans.

Under the worst possible conditions, a repeat of 1977, the district would still have a 200-day water supply at the end of 1978, under the 35 per cent cutback program, although its two largest reservoirs (Pardee and Camanche) would be dry.

The report on the water supply status was given at Tuesday's board of directors meeting,

Also during that session, the board passed a resolution making it necessary for all contractors within the water district to apply for use of water in soil compaction on building sites.

The district will supply only 80 per cent of the water necessary for the job and is requiring all contractors to use reclaimed wastewater to make up the other 20 per cent.

The district also agreed to cut off contractors' water supplies if they do not apply for an EBMUD use permit, or exceed their allotments by 25 per cent.

In Contra Costa County, EBMUD serves Walnut Creek, Lafayette, Moraga, Orinda and the San Ramon Valley.

The district's 'water year' began Oct.1. Normal water year runoff from the Mokelumne watershed is 713,000 acre-feet. In 1976, the runoff was only 245,000 acre feet, the lowest on record, according to the district.

The back-to-back droughts dropped the runoff to 34 percent of normal in 1976 and a bare 19 percent this last year.

EBMUD officials are eyeing water consumption as well as the supply.

If the trend which began when the district put its customers on allotment continues to Dec. 31, 1977, "we shall end the year with a greater than 35 percent reduction in water use — possibly 40 percent," claim officials.

Right now, the district is pumping about 70 million gallons per day.

Help for battered women

Increasing numbers of reports about battered wives has led a group of Valley women to begin work on a shelter for victims of domestic violence here.

It is estimated that half of all American wives are battered women. Livermore police respond to family disturbance calls each weekend, said Sgt. Phillip Johnson.

A bill recently signed by Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. allocates money for state-funded battered wife shelters.

Many feel support from other women is necessary because they contend police do little for victims of domestic beating.

Trustee seekers to give views

PLEASANTON — Six aspirants for the vacant position on the Pleasanton Joint School District board will present their backgrounds and viewpoints at a candidates night scheduled this evening at 7:30 in the Harvest Park School library.

The number actively seeking the position vacated by Joe Schwab was reduced one more when Jay Buffa, a teacher in San Ramon and prep sports official, decided he would not have the necessary time. Earlier, Lula Wilson and Ann Hunter informed board president Betty Nostrand they were dropping out.

That leaves six candidates — James R. Tomcik, Robert M. Coffey, Raymond Goluba, Karen L. Fritts, Ginger Moorefield, and Arthur Tenbrink.

Tonight's forum is open to district residents and will be moderated by a representative of the League of Women Voters. Candidates will open with presentations and, later, take questions from the audience.

At the conclusion of the forum, the Pleasanton school board will hold a special meeting, scheduled to begin at 9, to review and select finalists for public interviews.

An executive session will follow the open review and selection of finalists.

As now planned, the finalists chosen will be publicly interviewed Tuesday, 7:30 p.m., at the district offices. The board will announce their selection after interviews are completed.

The board must make a selection by Nov. 6 as, according to law, an appointment must be made within 30 days after a resignation. The alternative is to hold an election. The electorate has 30 days after the appointment in which to petition for an election. During this period, the appointee may not take part in any board actions.

Tonight's meeting is the only candidates night scheduled for the six aspirants.

The person ultimately appointed will serve through March of 1979.

Present school board members are Mrs. Nostrand, president, Earnestine Schneider, clerk, Dr. Ronald Ott and Nancy Hawtrey. Mrs. Schneider, Mrs. Hawtrey and Dr. Ott all were elected in March of this year.

Vallecitos fault known for 19 years

General Electric officials knew there was a probable fault on their Vallecitos Nuclear Center site as far back as 1958, according to public records at the Nuclear Regulatory Commission's office in Walnut Creek.

Two studies completed by geologists in 1958 for G.E. showed evidence of an air photo lineation next to the plant; another study completed for G.E. four years ago concluded that there definitely was a probable fault within 200 feet of the plant's large nuclear reactor.

An air photo lineation usually indicates a fault. At least three studies completed for G.E. cited that lineation years before the U.S. Geological Survey discovered the fault next to the nuclear center this past September.

None of the studies tested the age of rocks on the fault line to discover if the fault was ancient or active — and all concluded the lineation was a minor seisfault was ancient or activeic hazard.

The 1973 study completed by Blume and Associates, Engineering, of San Francisco states, "As part of this investigation, other sources of information were evaluated which, likewise, suggest the existence of the same fault along the base of the hills near the center."

It isn't yet known why G.E. didn't trench the lineation to determine if it was in fact a fault, as has been discovered, before ordered to do so by the NRC this past October.

G.E. spokesman Ken Clemens told The Times he would have to look up the reports before answering that question.

William Gammill of the NRC in Washington D.C. said he also can't immediately explain why the commission didn't order an investigation of the fault earlier. NRC was sent the studies showing a probable fault by G.E.

But Gammill speculates that NRC may have considered the lineation of minor significance until this year when the U.S. Geological Survey reported that it was the Verona fault.

One study done by C.A. Hall, a geologist with the University of California, cites evidence of that fault back in 1955 — before the Vallecitos Nuclear P Center was constructed. — by Jayne Garrison

Ancestral tree list growing

LIVERMORE — This area abounds with beautiful old trees. In fact, the original list of "ancestral trees" numbered about 900, which were protected under a special ordinance.

Now the Beautification Committee is revising the list and hopes to present an updated version to the planning commission by December. Next step would be notifying property owners where these ancestral trees are located that a public hearing will be held on designating their tree (or trees) under the ordinance.

"We've got about 74 more streets to check," says Parks and Trees Superintendent Dan Freitas. "I'd say we're about 75 per cent done on the updating."

What does it take to become an ancestral tree? The requirements were revised last year after a lengthy hassle over two palm trees on South Livermore Avenue. The owners wanted to get rid of the trees, but the 1972 ordinance protected them.

Under the revised ordinance, the people will be given an opportunity to protest to the city council that they don't want their tree included under the ordinance. "Previously, there was no opportunity to protest. The tree was protected no matter what the property owner said," Freitas explained.

Other requirements of ancestral trees, which Beautification Committee members and Freitas are checking, include the origin of the tree. Is it a native or non-native, and has it adapted to the climate? They try to estimate its size through growth configurations and age of the tree, if it is determinable.

The committee looks at the tree in relation to the historical development around it or its location to existing historical buildings or structures.

Sometimes the tree is judged by its location relative to already designated ancestral trees, such as a grove. An example would be the trees on the grounds of Pentecostal Bible College, Freitas said.

Health and viability of the tree is considered, including any potential hazard to the public. And they study the potential for economic hardship to the owner. Some of the trees require considerable maintenance at an expense to the owner, Freitas explained.

Size of the tree no longer is a criteria for ancestral tree designation, he added, "because some of these trees just don't get very big even if they are quite old." Under the original ordinance, a tree with a 50-inch diameter could be an ancestral tree.

Certificates will be given to the ancestral tree owners eventully and a notice will be filed with the deed, telling of the designation.

This is among many "ancestral" trees in Livermore which may soon receive city protection for its future life. A list of significant and historical trees is now being completed and will be presented to the city council.

The guard had included with his complaint a list of men who had supposedly gotten Valley Fever at the site during employment there. He claimed that 10 other guards had contracted Valley Fever while onsite, a rate higher than that of other Site 300 employes.

Carrico said there had been only one case of Valley Fever in the Livermore area since 1960. He added that the names contained in the guard's list could be investigated through DOE files if the matter "becomes a serious issue."

The Department of Energy will take soil samples from the firing table at Site 300 and forward them to a private laboratory for analyses, Carrico said.

The investigation would have been completed this week, but media coverage has forced that back another two to three weeks, he said.

The Department of Energy has the power to shut down any facet of the program if safety considerations are compromised, Carrico said, adding: "I think the complaint of the gentleman is completely without grounds."

Pleasanton, VCSD see sewer pact

A rough draft of the contract between VCSD and Pleasanton for sewage treatment allocates 4.59 of the total 8.34 million gallons a day treated to the city.

According to the draft approved by the city council Tuesday, Pleasanton will also have the right to tell VCSD officials to apply for additional sewage capacity if the plant has reached 75 percent of its capacity and a study shows expansion is needed.

The contract draft goes before the VCSD board Wednesday for approval. City officials expect to meet with VCSD next Thursday to approve the final contract.

A contract must be signed before Nov. 15 if VCSD expects to receive state and federal funding for the plant's expansio

Truth finder tells of Nixon

His work takes him all over the world and, in fact, he is scheduled to leave for American Samoa today where he and his associates work with the territorial government on much of their investigations. He recently returned from Greece.

Seventy-five to eighty per cent of his work is with police agencies and much of the remainder for insurance companies. Does he take civil cases? "Not very often," retorts Mazor, "they're too boring."

The Psychological Stress Evaluator (PSE) is an electornic device used to detect and measure stress in the human voice. The degree of stress, or its absence, is graphically represented on a moving chart. The PSE specifically identifies stress induced by fear, anxiety, guilt or other forms of personal conflict and thereby, according to Mazor, facilitates the detection of conscious deception.

It is similar to the polygraph or "lie detector" in that, with an expert operator, it can be used to indicate stress normally accompanying "deception." However, notes Mazor, it cannot prove deceit since stress may result from other emotional or psychological causes. "While the PSE cannot conclusively prove an individual is being deceptive, it can prove an individual is being trutful," he says.

Regarding interview of a suspect, Mazor said "You ask him his name, whether he's married and what his age is to establish norm values. Then you ask if he committed the crime. If the machine registers stress during the latter question, then you can establish that he may be deceiving you ... at least the person has knowledge of the incident in question."

From the test come two "patterns." Says Mazor, "We don't look at the width and height of the lines but at the pattern and the wave form."

Mazor says that tests of James Earl Ray were split but that a third, administered by him, was "hazy," indicating that Ray was withholding information or being deceptive. — by Al Fischer

Sandia probes hydrogen energy potential

LIVERMORE — The abundancy of hydrogen as a possible energy source today stimulates discussions on alternate fuel supplies, and Sandia Laboratories is attempting to stimulate that interest a little farther.

Hydrogen, the lightest of all elements, exists in almost limitless quantities in ocean water but has several drawbacks — extracting hydrogen from water is expensive, a new high-pressure pipeline network would be required, and the gas attacks steel, the metal commonly used in pipes, leading to increased cracking and pipeline failure.

Sandia technicians Steven Robinson, Robert Anderson and Robert Habekoss of the Materials Development Division are concerned with the problem of hydrogen embrittlement in pipelines. They have just completed construction of a miniature, experimental pipeline designed to combat such failure.

"We — the Department of Energy — are looking for ways to transport hydrogen at higher pressures. If cheap hydrogen should become available, we'll want to use existing pipelines. This 8means we have to determine the magnitude of the embrittlement problem, and our 80-foot pipeline addresses that purpose," explained Robinson.

Sandiot pipeline addresses that purpose," explained Robinson.

Sandia's hydrogen pipeline is constructed of carbon - manganese steel similar to those used in natural gas pipelines. It is set up to evaluate the behavior of deliberately defective pipeline sections and welds.

Data collected and knowledge gained are expected to have applications to largenpressure vessels used for hydrogen storage as well as pipelines.

"The embrittlement problem," says Robinson, "would virtually go away if we wanted to use stainless steel for pipelines. Consider though, the tens of thousands of miles of existing eld steel pipelines, the cost of stainless steel (ten times that of mild steel), the construction costs and that stainless steels require the use of strategic resources such as chromium.

"The price tag for a new stainless steel distribution gas system would be excessive. Perhaps our experimental pipeline will point the way to a less expensive solution."

Steven Robinson (left) and Robert Anderson of Sandia Laboratories in Livermore check out a section of an 80-foot pipeline. The Sandia facility will be used in studies of hydrogen embrittlement as it relates to use of existing pipelines for possible transmission of the gas in a hydrogen economy.

'Golden Goose Contest' bids for creative student ideas

Students throughout the United States can win prizes while they learn how jobs are created and other economic facts of life, in a contest with the theme of "the goose that lays the golden eggs."

The contest is based on information in Wheelabrator-Frye's fourth, and latest, Annual Report for Young People, which is written in simple, easy-to-understand language and called "The Golden Goose."

The 50 best class efforts will win $100 and their schools will be awarded "Golden Goose" trophies. Classes from elementary school through college are eligible. Entries will be judged by a panel of professors from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT) and other leading universities.

For contest information, write: "Golden Goose Contest," Wheelabrator - Frye Inc., Liberty Lane, Hampton, N.H. 03842.

Covered

The new swimming pool cover for San Ramon Olympic Pool will be reeled onto giant spools for easier handling. The cover is in 11 sections. Each section is 15 feet wide, 25 yards long. The purpose of the cover is to conserve energy by helping hold heat in pool water. Sun Ray Solar Systems of Walnut Creek contracted with Valley Community Services District (VCSD) to put the cover on the pool. MacBall Industries, Inc. of Oakland manufactured the 12,000 sq. ft. cover. A spokesman for MacBall said 70 per cent of the pool's heat would be retained by using the cover. The cover's outer layer is a woven, film-coated fabric. The underside is a close-cell foam material. The fabric side provides strength; the foam, insulation and floating capability.

EBMUD blamed for hatchery fish deaths

By KELLY GUST
Times Staff Writer

OAKLAND — The State Department of Fish and Game is blaming East Bay Municipal Utility District for the deaths of between 20,000 and 80,000 fish in a state-owned hatchery.

The California Regional Water Quality Control Board will hold a hearing Friday in Bakersfield to see if EBMUD is to blame.

The fish and game division claims that a release of water from Pardee Reservoir washed toxic copper and zinc sediment into the downstream hatchery's water, killing the fish. EBMUD owns the Mother Lode area reservoir.

If found guilty, the district could be forced to pay up to $10,000 a day for each day the hazard existed.

Although it has agreed to help clean up the source of the pollution, the district contends the sediment was not the sole cause of the killings.

Sediment from the abandoned Penn Mine, two and a half miles downstream from Pardee, has been washing into the Mokelumne River since the early 1960s when EBMUD built its Camanche Reservoir, water officials said.

There have been high levels of toxicity before, the district said, but that has not caused wide-spread killing of the fish.

"Although this particular incident highlighted this matter, this has been a chronic problem," said James Robertson, executive officer of the Central Valley regional water quality control board, explaining that small numbers of fish have been killed in the past.

The control board issued a cleanup and abatement order to the district, which gives EBMUD until Dec. 1 to eliminate the hazard.

The Penn Mine property, which is inactive and covers 250 acres, is two miles downstream from Pardee, and adjacent to Camanche Reservoir when full.

Surface drainage from the 100-year-old copper and zinc mine enters the reservoir at Oregon Bar, a sand and gravel deposit in the Mokelumne River on district property.

A full day of talks on water management

DUBLIN — The Congress of Valley Agencies (COVA) invites public officials and the general public to attend and participate in a day-long community congress on water management Oct. 29 from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The congress will be held in the Dublin High School auditorium.

Sack lunches may be ordered during the registration period between 9:30 and 10 a.m.

A program of panel presentations will follow from 10 to 12.

Program subjects will deal with the following:

1. Sources of Water — the State water project, South Bay aqueduct, independent quotas (wellfields), private wells (legal and illegal).

2. Treatment and Distribution of Valley Water — treatment facilities, distribution system, storage facilities/capacities, quality variations, water usage.

3. Wastewater Disposal — sewage treatment facilities, discharge to Alameda Creek, land disposal practices.

4. Reivew of the Basin Plan — who developed the plan, what are the plan's purposes, what are the plan's elements, how will it be implemented/enforced?

5. Review of the Pipeline Project — why is it necessary, what is the cost, when will it be operational, how will it be paid for?

6. The Basin Plan Impact on the Valley — how does the Valley fit into the basin plan, what elements of the plan cause the greatest impact on the Valley?

All panel presentations will last 20 minutes.

Questions and panel responses will take place from 12-12:30; sack lunch, from 12-1.

Group discussions will follow lunch from 1-2 p.m. Some of the questions to be considered are: (a) If the drought continues, what water controls/conservation measures should be pursued?

(b) Do "water" problems exist in the Valley? If so, what actions are necessary to correct those problems?

(c) Do "water management" problems exist in the Valley? If so, what alternatives would provide the most beneficial results?

(d) Are there elements of the Basin Plan that pose potential problems for the Valley? If s what steps should be taken to initiate responsible Valley actions?

(e) Other matters of importance.

Congress will reconvene from 2:35 to 4 p.m. A report of group positions will be given by each group's reporter.

The congress will adjourn with a conclusion and referral of results.

Oil blaze

TAFT (AP) — Three workers dangling helplessly in a basket above an oil well were burned to death when the well exploded, forcing officials early today to send for famed oil fire battler Red Adair.

The blaze at the sprawling Elk Hills Naval Oil Reserve, the nation's largest reserve outside Alaska, began Tuesday with an explosion deep inside the 7,000-foot well. A geyser of oil and flames spewed more than 100 feet into the air.

The blast blew the three men out of their suspended basket and hurtled them more than 50 feet from the oil rig, said Kern County Fire Department Capt. Ron Marshall.

"One man got up and tried to run, but he collapsed after about 125 feet," said Marshall. "All their clothes were burned off. Two of them still were wearing their heavy work boots."

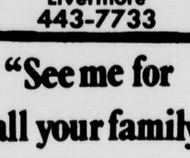

Identities of the victims were not released.

Wives get battered Valley no exeption

Sometimes it's just a slap or a shove. More often it results in bruises and blood. Whatever the dimension, when a husband strikes his wife it's battery.

Area women are becoming increasingly aware and disturbed by the numbers of women who are being beaten by the men they live with.

Each weekend the Livermore police respond to at least one or more calls where the wife has "gotten knocked around," according to Sgt. Phillip Johnson.

It is estimated that 28 million women in the United States each year are victims of battering.

The belief that 50 per cent of all American wives are battered women is supported by National League of Cities and the U.S. Conference of Mayors.

"I have recieved 53 calls (from battered women) since February 25 ," said Cathie Brown, a member of Tri-Valley Haven for victims of domestic violence.

Those calls have reached her at home through word-of-mouth that she has information to aid battered women, she said.

Wife battering "crosses all socio-economic boundries. It is a myth that is just the lower classes. It can happen to a woman whose husband makes $100,000 a year, or to a woman on welfare," explained Pam Condy coordinator of the Battered Women's Center in Hayward.

Age apparently makes little difference either. "I get calls from women of all ages," said Brown. "The other night the woman was in her fifties. And I have gotten calls from some as young as 17."

Statements to the effect: "She must like it, or she'd leave," are simply not true, contended Condy. "No woman likes to be beaten or tortured. " The reasons women don't leave are many, said Condy.

"There is a physical and psychological dependency on husbands and lovers," she stated. Women don't just get up and leave because, she explained, they may have no money, no car, they have children to care for.

There are religious reasons, and family pressures that keep women from abandoning their household, said Condy adding that there is always the hope that he will change.

Often, commented Condy, they still love their husbands. "They may have a good relationship other than he beats her."

And, she said, "there is a tremendous fear of the unknown once you're out the door."

To help battered women past this fear shelters have been started to house victims. In the Valley, a group of women are raising mony for a local shelter.

The Tri-Valley Haven will be "a house for 25 victims, women and their children, staffd by people who ar sensitive to women's needs. Our goal is to help them to become self-sufficient and to provide a safe environment," explained Cathie Brown.

The eight active members of the Tri-Valley Haven are currently holding fund-raising evnts. Brown said it is also hoped money will come from the department of Housing and Urban Development, and from a bill recently passed in the state senate.

The Presley Bill, SB 91, appropriates $280,000 for a pilot project to create state-funded shelters for battered wives. State health officals are to pick locations for four to six centers by April 1, 1978.

Many battered women don't feel they get adequate protection from police departments. "Women I have talked to in Livermore say they feel officers say 'It's a family affair, you need to solve it yourself.,'" said Brown.

Condy reiterated, "They (police) see it as a family matter and don't want to get involved." A suit against the Oakland police for its alleged "arrest avoidance policy in battering situations" will go to court Oct. Friday, Oct. 28 .

When he hears that police are not doing their job, Livermore Sgt. Phillip Johnson, said he wants to know which cases, "give me specifics."

When Livermore police respond to a "Family 415," which can mean any disturbance from music too loud to felony battery, the first thing they do is make sure everyone's safety is insured, said Johnson.

Then, if it is a case of wife battering, they will ask what the woman wants to do, said Johnson explaining that often she doesn't know what she wants to do.

In many cases, he said those who choose to prosecute "after a few days forget about it for love or finances or whatever."

In one case this month a woman had been beaten by her husband with a crutch. The report said the woman wanted to press charges, but would not agree to photographs of her bruises for evidence.

When the officer called back in five days, according to the report, the phone had been disconnected.

Johnson did say if the officer goes to the same house two or three times he is "going to be a little leery of taking him (the husband) to jail."

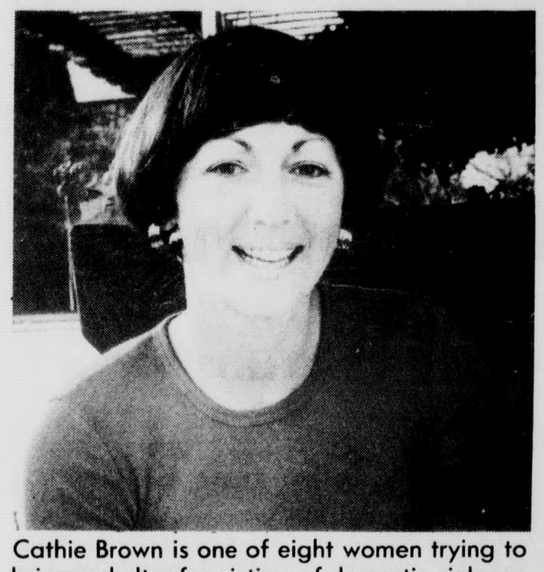

With the women's shelters to give counseling and support, "I question why they pick on the police for not helping them out," said Johnson.

Condy responded that "police are not to judge. They are public servants and they should fill out the papers."

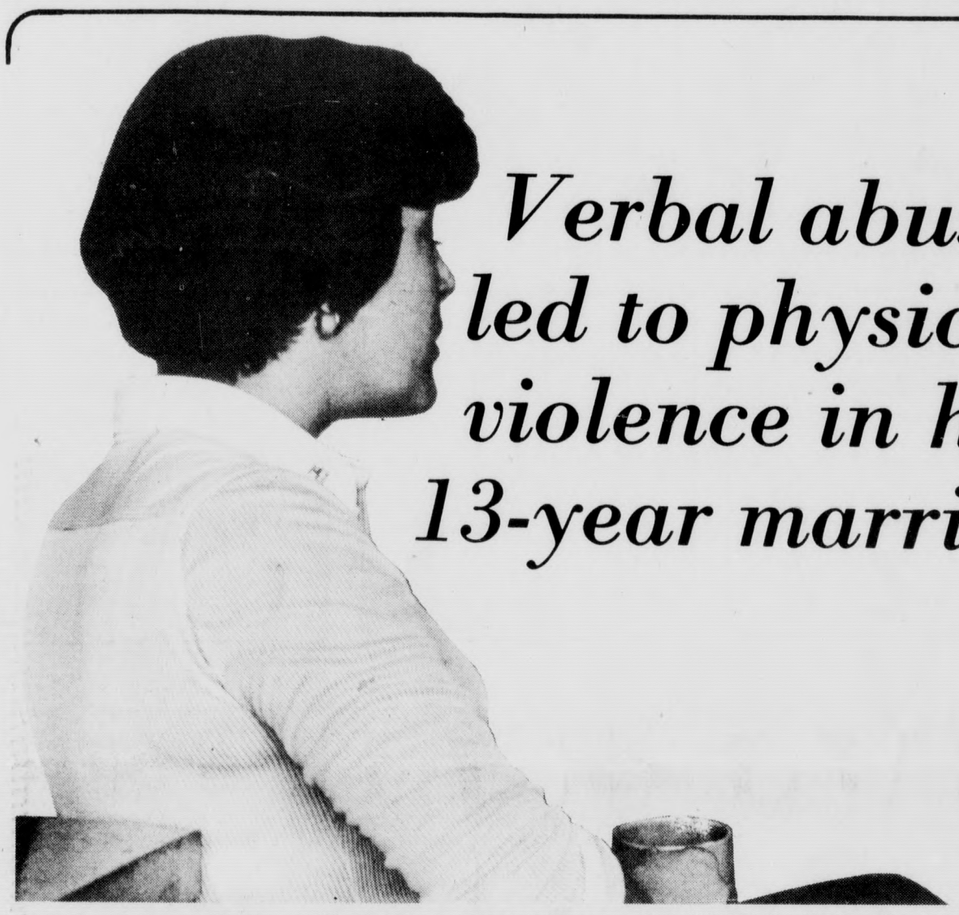

There is a battered women's rap Wednesdays at 3:30 p.m. at the South County Women's Center in Hayward. Child care and transportation is available by calling 537-2112 a day in advance.

Cathie Brown will take calls and direct women to shelters and other resources. Her phone number is 447-7621.

Verbal abuse led to physical violence in her 13-year marriage

"I really didn't know what a battered wife was. But, it was happening to me."

Liydia, the woman speaking, is a Pleasanton resident who met with the Times recently to tell about her experience as a battered wife.

The abuse began with verbal threats from her fiance, she said, and steadily increased in severity until after 13 years of marriage she filed for divorce because she feared for her life.

Liydia was married at 15. Her husband was 17. "Very shortly after we were married he started pushing me around," she said.

The violence got worse, Liydia explained, "I wasn't held down and beaten for 15 minutes, but I was knocked to the floor and hit. I had heavy objects thrown at me. One time I was hit so hard, I guess I couldn't move for maybe 20 minutes "

She left him "when I realized that it wasn't right, that I didn't have to live like that, and that things weren't going to get any better."

Why it took 13 years of continued beating before Liydia finally divorced her husband is complex, she said.

"In a way I thought it was normal in a marriage." She said in the crowd she knew — "a drinking atmosphere" — many of the husbands pushed around their wives.

Liydia also equated the hollering and yelling her father directed at her mother with her own abuse. "I thought in a way, whatever your husband does is right — You just have to accept it."

'The game ended when . . . I got fed up and got myself a gun.'

Years later when she talked with her mother she learned differently. "I said, 'Look Mom, all that you put up with.' "

Liydia said her mother replied, "I put up with anger and yelling, but Daddy never touched me." "So, I had suffered all those years thinking ... I was doing what my mother was. I was being a good wife. I made myself sick, I was being such a good wife," recalled Liydia.

And, like many battered women, Liydia blamed herself for her husband's actions. "Sure, it was my fault." She said he purposely made her mad and that led to angry words from her.

"This is what I attributed it to. Not all he did to make me say those things, or what he said to me, I only remembered the things I said when I got mad," she said.

Besides, she loved him. "Yea, I did. He was my husband and he loved me and it didn't happen every single day."

Ten years after they'd been married, Liydia said, "I began to realize something wasn't right.

"He began to feel guilty and the more guilt there was, the more beating there was. I really began to realize at that time that I wasn't doing anything wrong."

With the aid of her doctor, Liydia got her husband into therapy. But, the progress was so slow and she was so anxious to see results, it was suggested she too seek help, explained Liydia.

"I had to have counseling to see that I didn't have to dedicate my life to this man." She said, "I had married young and I hadn't matured enough to know I was OK."

The battering continued, so after 12 years of marriage Liydia moved out and began divorce proceedings.

The situation, she said, didn't improve much because he came by weekly for the next eight months to harass and injure her. "At that time I had done the ultimate — I had left him. So, I truly did fear for my life."

It got to the point where Liydia looked toward the police (not in Pleasanton) for protection.

"I pressed charges once and like some stupid idiot, I dropped them. I couldn't help but feel if I dropped the charges he would change and leave me alone," she recalled.

But, he didn't, and she said the police protection "was awful. They didn't do anything besides come out to the house. They believed him."

Liydia said she had filed a citizen's arrest and still the officers let him go.

Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I'm afraid my son is a homosexual. I never thought that before because he's been married twice and he's not going with some woman, but he uses so much perfume it really embarrasses me. I think it's all right for women to use cologne and perfume but I've always felt that no real man does. Do you think I should talk to him about this? He's only 29 and maybe he's not to old to change. — J.L.

DEAR J.L.: First of all, many males today use colognes and perfumes. It has nothing to do with their sex life. There are homosexuals who shun cologne just as some heterosexual males do.

Don't worry about your son's sexual preferences and don't ask him about it, under the circumstances. If you can do it in a light - handed way you might talk to him about the amount or the scent he uses. If you have a very close relationship with him, he might not mind a comment from you, especially if you can do it in a joking, inoffensive way. It's important to remember though that what you may consider heavy cologne, someone else might think is just right.

An average person can smell 1,000 different odors and each of them evokes different emotional feelings and different visual images. Fragrance is highly personal. Smell is a way of communicating and is the most powerful way nature has found to prove identity. It's a kind of signal exchanged between human beings that is often more important than visual or auditory ones. If a man wears a certain fragrance, those around him will associate this fragrance with him for months and years. Fragrance should be subtle, however. It should not be like a flashing neon sign, but a reward for closeness.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I have a girl friend who drives me crazy because she begins every sentence with, "Don't tell anybody, but." Well, I don't like it because I'm afraid I'll make a slip or someone else will and I'll be blamed. She protests when I accuse her of being overly secretive and needlessly complicated when she tells me she's protecting somebody. She's having an affair with a married man and you can imagine what all this leads to. I couldn't live this way and yet I find I'm forced to because of my friendship with her.— L.S.

DEAR L.W.: First of all, I think you can tell your friend that you're beginning to feel that you can't carry any more secrets. I'ts a heavy burden and while you understand the problem, you just can't take on the load.

Anytime a person is forced or thinks he is forced to carry secrets, anxiety and pressure build up. Generally speaking, the fewer secrets, the more open a person's life, the less tension and the greater chance there is for emotional health. The most prevalent secrets kept by adults involve infidelity. Sometimes, both partners are cheating on each other and trying to "protect each other" at the same time. Many so - called kind - hearted secrets perpetuate both minor and major cruelties, for they deprive people of making choices of how they want to live their lives and with whom.

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB–Bless the woman who wrote you about the pain she was suffering from diverticulosis. I have had it for years. Four years ago I went into the hospital for X rays and a cure. I was put on a soft diet along with sulfa pills. It seemed to heal the colon, then about five months ago I started having this awful pain in the abdomen. I guess I was never free of it until I read your column about using cereals with fiber.

For three weeks now after I started using All-Bran I haven't felt any discomfort. I have a bowl every other morning with a banana or peaches. It isn't easy to take as I've never liked cereals of any kind.

I am regular and normal in all respects. I can't think thank you enough and will pass on the word to friends who have this trouble.

Also I wanted to thank you for The Health Letter you sent me on strokes. I read it to my husband who had one two years ago. He quit smoking and feels much more alert and better physically.

DEAR READER–I am glad to hear both you and your husband have improved. Several years ago when you were first evaluated for diverticulosis, those pesky pockets of the colon, the idea of using fiber or bulk for treatment was just beginning. The concepts of treatment of spastic colon, diverticulosis and related problems has undergone a drastic change since then.

DEAR DR. LAMB–You recommended that women past the menopause should get at least 1000 milligrams (1 gram) of calcium a day. I try to eat foods that contain a large amount of calcium but I am one of those who cannot tolerate dairy products. I'm 58, in the age group you mentioned, and I don't want to start having softening of the spine. I was diagnosed as having a spastic colon years ago and have a severe gas problem.

I am wondering if it is wise to take calcium with magnesium as a supplement. We have a water softener and I understand these chemicals are lost.

I am in a quandry about the supplement and had stopped taking them for fear I could be getting more than I need by taking three a day.

DEAR READER–There is nothing wrong with taking a calcium supplement. Some of the various preparations are irritating to the digestive system and others are not. A frequently overlooked source of advice on a good supplement preparation is your neighborhood pharmacist. He may be able to help you choose one that is good for you.

You wouldn't get enough calcium in your water, even without the softener to really solve your problem.

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

Q. "WHERE DOES DEW COME FROM?"

JILL CERMELE
CRANFORD, N.J.

A. DEW FORMS WHEN MOISTURE IN THE AIR CONDENSES AS IT TOUCHES THE COOLER SURFACE OF PLANTS AND OTHER EXPOSED OBJECTS

© 1977 by NEA, Inc. T.M. Reg. U.S. Pat. Off. 10/27

On a cool, clear morning you may see dewdrops glistening on plants and on blades of grass.

Dewdrops are formed from the moisture in the air when the air touches the cold grass.

During the day, the heat from the sun causes moisture from the earth to evaporate into the warm air. At night, after the sun stops warming the earth, the grass and other objects out in the open cool off quickly.

When the air touches the chilled grass, or another cold object, some of its moisture condenses and collects on the cold surface as drops of dew.

After the sun comes up, the earth grows warmer. The dew evaporates and disappears into the air, ready to form more dew on the next clear night.

You seldom see dew on a cloudy night. The clouds act like a blanket around the earth. They keep the ground from becoming cold enough for dew to form.

The temperature at which dew forms is called the "dew point."

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Old Man Z, the expert who always played the dummy in the auction bridge columns, was back for another duplicate game.

It didn't take him long to get to six hearts. He simply checked for aces with Blackwood (a convention that had not been invented in his early days) and bid the slam when his partner showed one ace.

It also didn't take him long to make the hand. He won the diamond lead in his own hand and led the queen of trumps. West covered with his king and when the jack fell from East the only loser was the ace of spades.

Why did Z play the trumps the way he did? His play would succeed if East held the singleton jack. The play of a low spade from his hand would work if West held the singleton king. Hence, each play had the same poor chance for success, yet Z led the spade queen without hesitation.

The reason was that he had a chance for a successful swindle. West might well duck with king-seven or king-six. Not that he should duck; rather that he just might make a bad play. As Z and all players have learned, when there is a chance to make a mistake there may be a mistake.

She's searched out furniture over the years

Virginia has opened her collection to the public.

Virginia's Collectibles in Mission Plaza is the product of long searches for old, and some not-so-old, furniture that has caught the eye of owner Virginia Pierce.

Her shop is jammed to the rafters with a wide variety of quality furnishings, some over 100 years old and others less than 10 years but all are "What I would like," she said.

The wood smell that permeates the shop comes from the highly polished pine, oak, mahogany and walnut furniture. Desks, dining tables, end tables and enough chairs to fill a small theater compete for space but give the shop a cluttered, comfortable, feel many homeowners now strive for, she said.

"You'd be surprised at some of the homes in Pleasanton and their combinations. Twenty years ago every piece was the same, even the legs had to be the same but now its a conglomeration," she said.

Virginia opened the store this month after setting the wheels in motion over the summer. She continues with another job as an interior decorator for a San Pablo furniture store but as a nine-year Plesanton resident she looks forward to cutting back on that 100-mile daily commute.

Married, with two grown children and two grown step-children, she said her own home is something of a mixture.

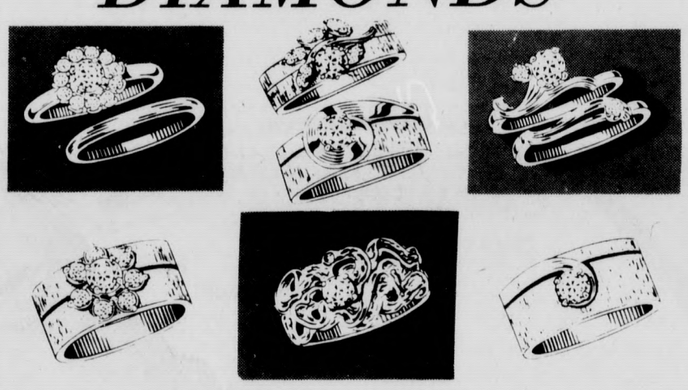

Star Wars star

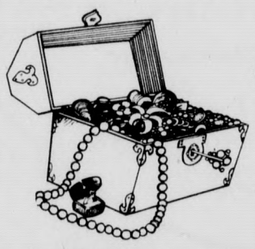

Mardji, an acting elephant whose credits include the movie "Star Wars," performances at Marine World Africa USA and a host of TV commercials, will help celebrate the grand opening of Children's Clothes Circus in Mission Plaza this Saturday from noon to 3 p.m. Balloons, candy and peanuts for Mardji will be given away and youngsters will also be able to see Snoopy and Leo the Lion.

Pleasanton's trim classes

The Pleasanton recreation department has announced two new classes in Yoga and Slim-Trim to start at the end of this month.

Both classes will be held at the Val Vista Recreation Center and cost $12. Two Yoga classes are scheduled; one to be held on Mondays from 9:30 to 11 a.m. and the other Thursdays from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

Slim-Trim classes are scheduled for Tuesdays and Thursdays from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. and on Mondays and Wednesdays from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. One can register by calling the recreation department at 846-3202.

Rec. dept. tennis due

Tennis classes for all ages are scheduled at the indoor courts at the Alameda County Fairgrounds this November.

Classes will be offered weekdays. Children are charged $12 and adults $18 for a month's worth of lessons. Interested persons can register for a class at the indoor courts weekdays from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Guitar workshop

Pleasanton teens looking for a place to 'jam' with their guitars have finally found one.

The recreation department is sponsoring a guitar workshop Mondays from 8 to 10 p.m. at the Westwind Youth Center.

For further information, call the recreation department.

Pleasanton leaves pool open, will subsidize swimmers

PLEASANTON — The city council voted to keep the Aquatic Center open this winter and to partially subsidize the AAU Swim Club after almost two hours of debate Tuesday night.

The vote was three to one. Council member Joyce LeClaire voted against the action, citing the country's energy problem as reason the city should close the pools. Member Frank Brandes abstained because he felt the city should charge the swim club more than the $200 a week ordered in the motion.

The council's action will allow the Swim Club to continue 8 using city pools for practice this winter at a cost the club can afford. Under the contract approved by the council, the club will pay the city $200 a week payable "in services, goods or cash."

Swim Club president Jim Davis had asked the council to either reduced the proposed $280 fee or drop charges altogether. He said he was very pleased with the council's vote and expects his club members to approve the contract at their meeting tomorrow.

According to Davis, club costs are so high that members can't afford high fees for winter water. A member currently pays $18.90 a month in dues, plus is expected to help raise money to fund attending swim meets.

Fashion show

Plaza merchants' president

In the business world its a long way from the construction field to jewelry, to children's clothing. But Eric Glanville, owner of three establishments in Mission Plaza, has seen the working end of all three and the operation of a small art gallery as well.

Glanville's Jewelers was one of the center's first shops when it opened last March. Since then the plaza has filled and Glanville has added the Golden Brush Art Gallery and Children's Clothes Circus which celebrates its grand opening this weekend.

He is also president of the plaza's merchants' association which is charged with promoting the center and acting as an intermediary with Mission Plaza owner Ted Myer.

"Any center starts slow but we've noticed the recent improvement," Glanville said.

"Membership (in the association) is written into the lease so it tends to be strong," he added laughing.

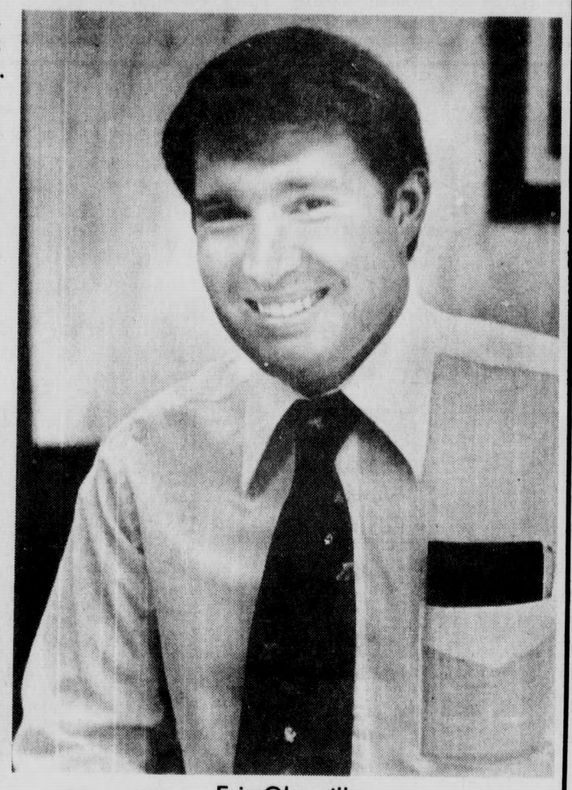

Glanville's put his first store in Valley Plaza four years ago when he entered the field after a long career (as a young man) in construction; "about 20 years, I started when I was four," he said.

After a virtual career building tunnels, flood channels and similar large-scale projects he left the family contracting company and entered the small business world with his wife Suzette.

The Golden Brush is a unique addition with its display of contemporary European renderings of traditional landscapes, seascapes and street scenes. The qallery is also planning to show the work of more Valley artists in the future.

Glanville's Jewelers handles a wide variety of merchandise but watch and jewel repair, the owner said, is left to the experts.

"I can fix a watch, but it would be with a hammer," Glanville laughed.

Step forward for city center

PLEASANTON — City council members set expansion plans for the Civic Center in motion Tuesday evening when they approved a rough design for the building's expansion and awarded a contract to the architectural firm of Jack Bras and Associates.

The expansion will add 4,936 square feet to the existing building and is expected to cost about $246,840, including both construction costs and architect fees.

The city plans to move into the completed additional space in July of 1978. Only council member Ken Mercer voted against the motion, reaffirming his stand that the expansion is not necessary.

In another action, city council appointed Paul Larson, Loretta Lund, Dorothy Davis and Bill Apherson to serve on the five-member Historical Landmark Advisory Committee.

Each of the four were appointed by individual council members. Vice-Mayor Joyce LeClaire asked that she be allowed to appoint her choice at the next city council meeting.

In other actions the council:

- Appointed council member Bill Herlihy to the LAVWMA Policy Advisory Committee and city manager Clayton Brown to the LAVWMA Technical Advisory Committee.
- Approved a contract with T J K M, Planning and Transportation Consultants to design a traffic signal at the Santa Rita Road and West Las Positas Boulevard intersection.
- Approved rezoning 2.56 acres of land between the Arroyo del Valle and the future Del Valle Parkway to allow construction of a 22 unit, two-story townhouse development.
- Approved the Lion's Club application to sponsor the 1978 Alameda County Fair Parade in June. There was no parade last year because no civic group would sponsor it.

Pleasanton Hotline wants help

Hotline, Inc. is seeking volunteers to be on the crisis line and serve on the Board of Directors and in other positions within the organization.

The next phone training sessions are Thursday, Oct. 27 at 7:30 p.m. in the Hotline office, 4361 Railroad Ave., Suite A, Pleasanton. Taking training does not obligate the volunteer to join in on the Hotline staff activities and service — but community members are invited to come and learn about communication techniques, listening, and the organization. For more information, call 462-5544.

Roller skating for youngsters

Roller Faire is offering a new six-week long session of roller skating for children from six to 18 years old beginning Nov. 1.

The $7 fee includes both use of the rink and skates. Skating will be held Tuesdays for an hour in the afternoon. For more information and to register, call the Pleasanton recreation department.

Washington reporter

Carter still carries his own load

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter no longer hops off airplanes hauling a garment bag, but he demonstrated during his recent Western swing that campaign habits die hard.

When Carter's limousine pulled up at the Century Plaza Hotel in Los Angeles, where he was to spend the night, the President headed straight for the vehicle's trunk and removed not only a garment bag but also a small black suitcase.

The White House naval aide made a serious attempt to unburden his boss, but Carter was adamant about serving as his own bellman.

During last year's campaign, Carter and his garment bag sometimes seemed inseparable, to the point where a Washington society columnist suggested that if the American people wanted a bellhop in the Oval Office, they would elect one.

Carter subsequently laid down the burdens of baggage for the larger ones of his new office. Now he customarily carries nothing larger than a thin briefcase, if that.

Departing for a recent weekend visit to Camp David, Md., however, Amy Carter put her father back in the baggage handling business. Emerging from the White House with a hatbox in hand, Amy intercepted her father near the ramp of a waiting helicopter and thrust the luggage at him.

While the President stood on the lawn, looking bemused, Amy raced off toward some White House sedans parked 50 yards away.

In a couple of minutes, Amy returned from one of the cars carrying her violin. Practice sessions obviously are a part of her Camp David routine.

In his Los Angeles talk, Carter said he was hopeful the dinner would "raise enough money to have my brother Billy come out and speak next year." After the laughter subsided, the President added, "Billy brings me a lot of good publicity, as you well know."

Carter also poked fun at California Gov. Edmund G. (Jerry) Brown, Jr., seen by some at the White House as his most formidable potential Democratic challenger in 1980.

The President said he had received "a personal handwritten letter" from Brown inviting him to the $1,000-a-plate dinner.

"I decided to come out here anyway," Carter concluded.

Hardy, Adams preps-of-week

Hardy shared the honor with Mission San Jose's Mike Carnell.

Mike, a 5-10, 165 pound senior, completed 12 of 14 passes for 189 yards and three touchdowns against Livermore. It was the second time Dublin has beaten Livermore in its history.

Carnell gained 302 yards on 25 carries as MSJ rolled over Kennedy 67-0 in a Mission Valley Athletic League game. The 6-1, 190 pound halfback scored six touchdowns in just three quarters.

Bart Adams of Monte Vista shares the Contra Costa award with Clayton Valley's Sandi Satre.

Adams carried the ball 18 times for 137 yards and two touchdowns as the Mustangs topped Foothill 17-8. He also had 115 yards passing.

Satre, a top volleyball player, led Clayton Valley to three wins in Diablo Valley Athletic League play. She had 27 service points and was eight for eight in spikes against Mt. Diablo. She has a seasonal spiking rate of 70 per cent.

San Mateo County's winner is Half Moon Bay quarterback Scott Mathews. He completed 150 of 27 passes for 213 yards and two touchdowns against Terra Nova. He also ran for one score as Half Moon Bay won 23-17 to remain undefeated.

Tracy Houk, a junior tennis player from Lincoln, is San Francisco's winner. She won 7-5, 6-4 over Kelly Sloan of Presentation High School in a key tennis match. She is the only undefeated player in singles play in the City.

Detroit tops theWarriors

DETROIT — Overwhelmed by a balanced Detroit shooting attack and hampered by the relative inactivity of center Robert Parish, the Golden State Warriors lost, 123-107, to the Pistons last night at Cobo Arena.

The Pistons, who hit at a 55 per cent clip from the floor, placed six players in double figures. Bob Lanier, the huge Piston center, led the way with 25 points and 13 rebounds, while Ralph Simpson — hitting 11 of 17 outside shots — scored 22.

Leon Douglas, near perfect at seven-of-eight from the floor, tallied 17 points and grabbed eight rebounds and Marvin Barnes, still not fully worked into shape after his brief Rhode Island prison term, scored 15 points and harvested a personal NBA high of 19 rebounds.

Eric Money added 14 points and Chris Ford 13 while their backcourt mate, Kevin Porter had seven assists.

The barrage was particurly wearing on Golden State, due to an abdominal injury suffering by Parish in Chicago Tuesday night, when he was kicked just below the stomach by a Bull player. Robert played just six minutes last night.

Forced to play 36 minutes — with only 6-9 Larry McNeill to back him up against the muscular Lanier — Clifford Ray was not a factor on offense and corraled only eight rebounds.

The Pistons had nothing new planned for the Warriors, despite the missing Parish and the addition of rookie Rickey Green at one guard.

"We basically played 'em the same way," said Money afterward. "We try to help out on defense and make Phil and Rick give up the ball and have some other guy shoot the ball."

It didn't work to perfection, as Barry and Smith combined for 53 shots, but neither shot well and though Smith had 32 points and Barry 21, the Pistons shut off many avenues of attack the Warriors mig have selected.

Still, with E.C. Coleman hitting medium range jumpers to the tune of 14 points, the Warriors were within four , 107-103, with a little over three minutes to play. After the Pistons scored, however, Smith missed a jumpr and though Coleman grabbed what could have been his eighth rebound of the night, Charles Dudley commited a loose ball foul.

The game was never the same. Ralph Simpson hit a 21-foot jumper moments later and Detroit was off on a 16-4 splurge that wound up the game.

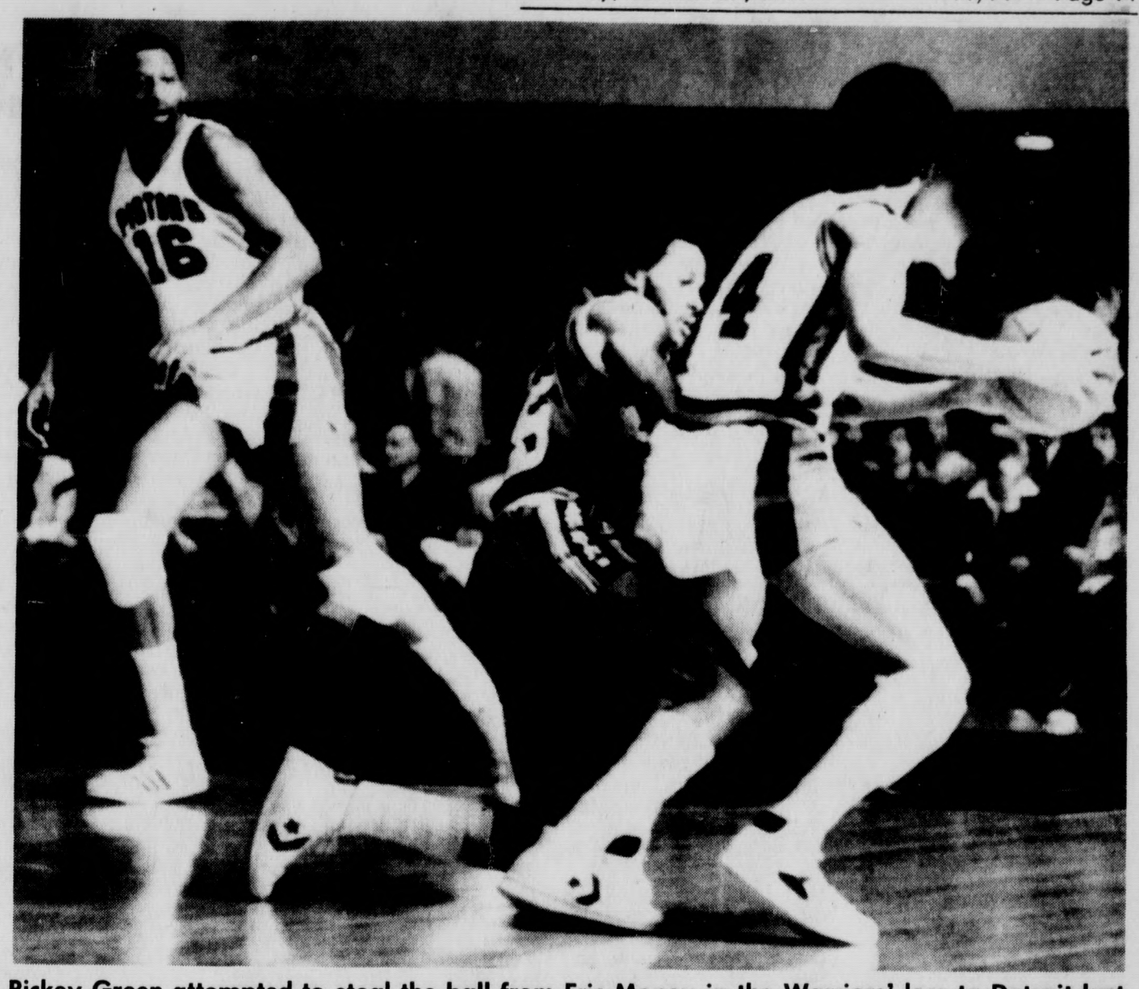

The Warriors, as they have been in four of their five games including both of their losses — were outrebounded, 57-41, but again limited their turnovers, coughing the ball up just 17 times to Detroit's 24.

The Pistons, evolving into one of the Warriors bigger rivals after the teams have met in the playoffs the past two years, are an improved team and, apparently, one devoid of the internal bickering of years past.

"We haven't really jelled as a team yet. We have to start moving the ball around more, creating opportunity shots," said Money, adding, "I think there's a better rapport between the guys. I don't see all the bickering going on."

The Warriors go on to face Buffalo at the Oakland Coliseum Arean Friday at 8 p.m. and the Philadelphia 76ers, Saturday at the same time.

Lachemann rehired in SJ

SAN JOSE, Calif. — Rene Lachemann, 32, was rehired today as manager of the San Jose Missions whom he piloted in the 1977 season, the Missions' first in the Pacific Coast League.

Lou Gorman, director of baseball operations for the Seattle Mariners, said in announcing the hiring Wednesday, "We consider Rene Lachemann one of the finest young field managers in the minor leagues."

The Missions had a 64-80 record last season when they were a farm club of the Oakland Athletics in whose organization Lachemann spent 13 yearsa player and coach.

Lachemann currently is managing the Mayaguez club in the Puerto Rican League.

Bellouomini is new Don coach

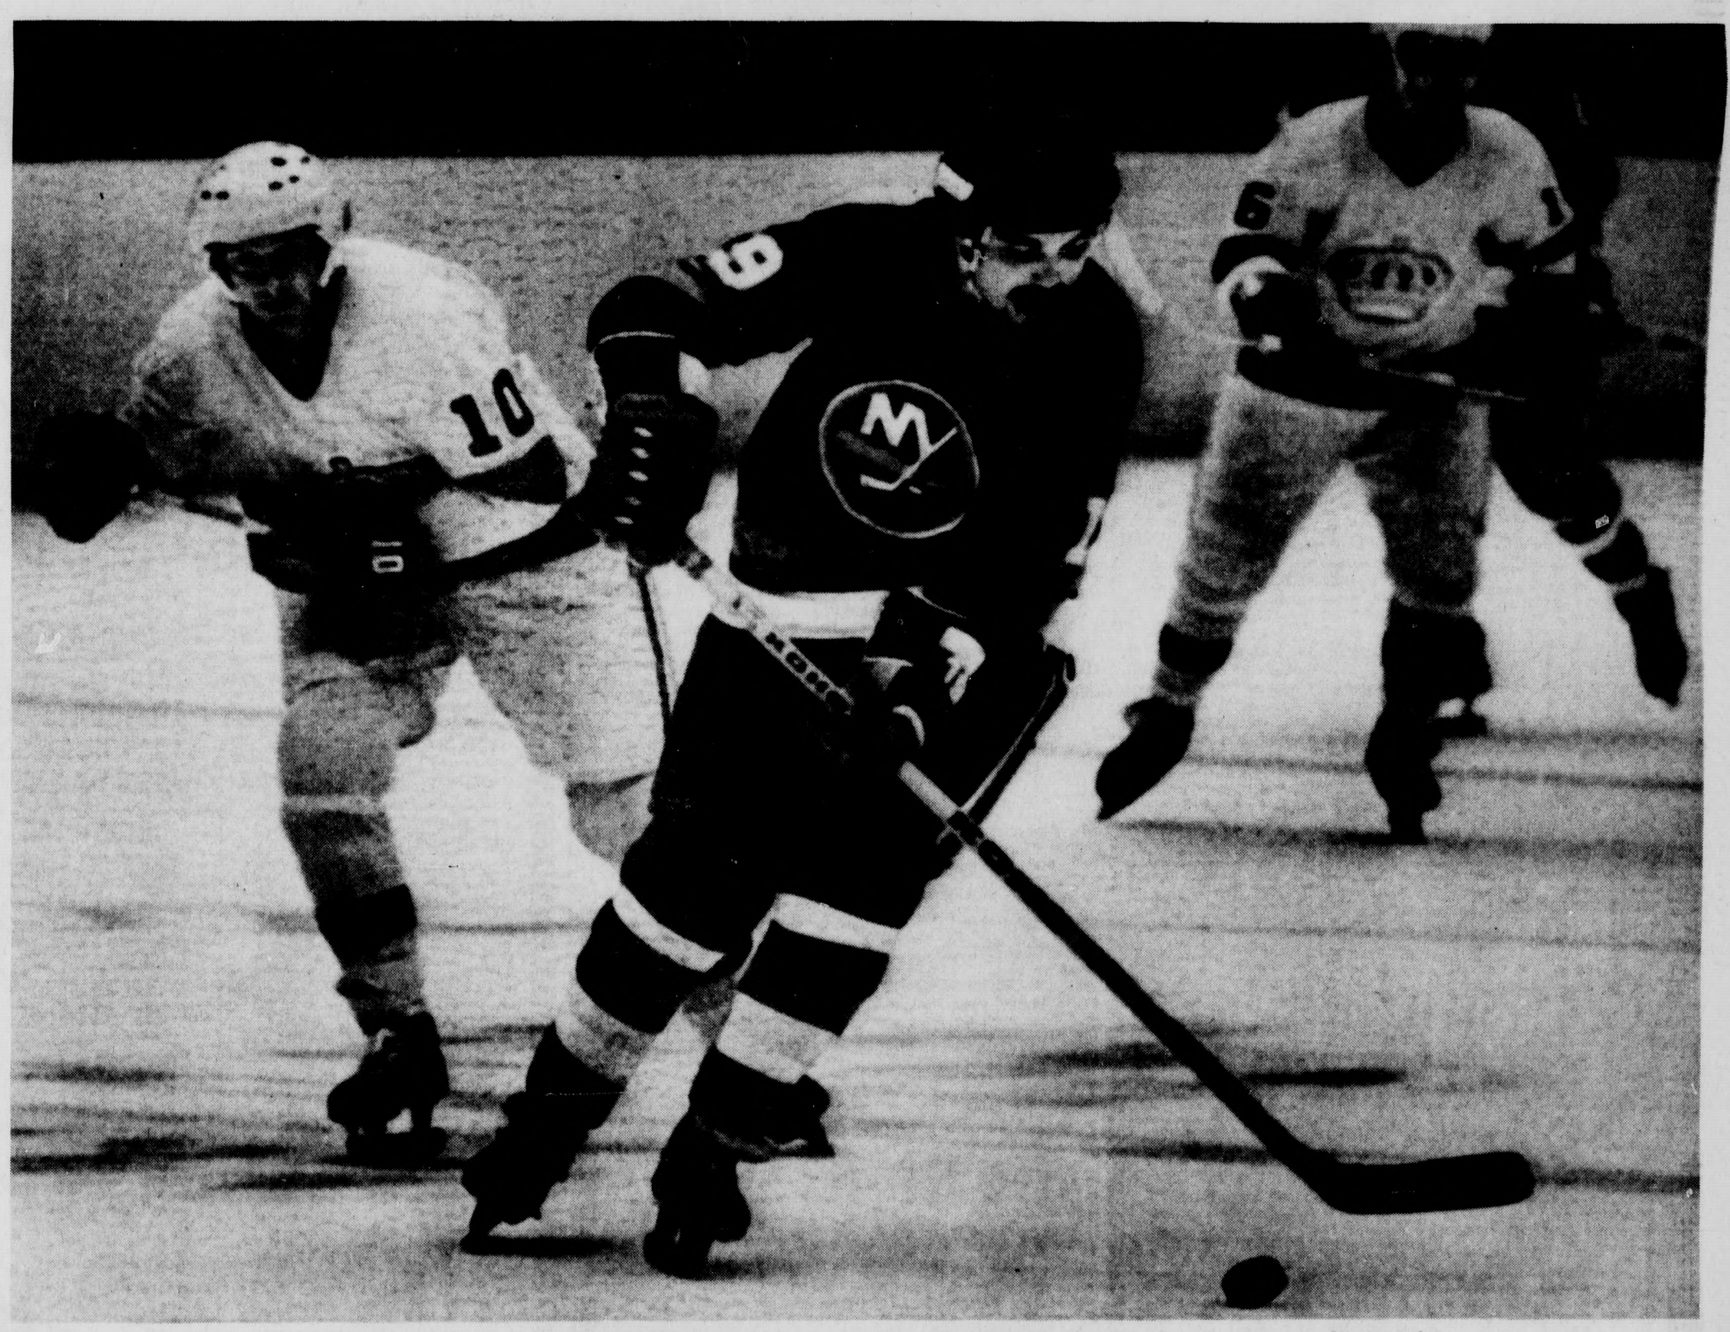

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Dan Belluomini, assistant for the past five years to retiring University of San Francisco basketball coach Bob Gaillard, was named Wednesday to succeed him, effective the 1978-79 season.

The 36 - year - old sportsman said he'd been hoping for the job because he had turned down a good offer earlier this year to coach Austin Peay at Clarksville, Tenn.

The San Francisco native has his work cut our for him, Gaillard, who also is retiting as the school's athletic director, posted a 29-2 record last year, which earned him Associated Press college coach of the year honors.

"I don;t think the university expects us to go 29-2 every year," said Belluomini. "I think even Bob would have a tough time improving on that. But the university is making a commitment to keep the program at a high level. They are looking to hire an athletic director, porbably for the outside, and I expect to be able to hire what the NCAA allows — two full-time assistants and a part-time coach.

Belluomini played college basketball at San Francisco.

Boxing comes to Pavilion

The late Bing Crosby described Tom Conroy as "a promotional genius" after his recent appearance at the Concord Pavilion. And "Der Bingle" as he was affectionately known in the entertainment and sports world, should know for he had been around public relations men for more than 50 years.

Name any type of promotion or field, and chances are Conroy has had a hand in staging it in virtually every entertainment center or sports arena in the country.

Conroy worked on 10 movies before giving up on Hollywood recently to what he regards as "God's Country," the Bay Area.

"I think the two biggest thrills of my life," says the cigar-chomping Conroy, "is the time Joe DiMaggio presented me with a Freedom Foundation Award at the Oakland Coliseum prior to an A's baseball game before 20,000 fans (those were the good old days) and just recently meeting Bing Crosby."

Relating to the latter experience, Conroy recalls, "I had almost a full month where I either saw or heard from Bing every day (including weekends). We would talk up a storm in our discussions of baseball, talking about Ted Williams, Mickey Mantle and the Pittsburgh Pirates of which Crosby had a big piece of stock. He was a well informed sports fan and in fact preferred talking about sports over discussions of the show biz world."

Conroy joined the Pavilion publicity staff and worked on many shows, but gave greater care to the shows of Crosby, Rosemary Clooney, Johnny Mathis, Henry Mancini and the annual Summer Jazz Festival.

Now the veteran PR man is beating the drums for the Pavilion's first boxing show coming up in a hurry, or Wednesday, Nov. 2 to be specific.

"This in many ways is the greatest challenge," says Tom. "The audience is not mass by any means. These fans are working men who enjoy a cocktail or two at the city's taverns or pubs. But they are the greatest. They make our country— the mechanics, blue collar workers and so-on.

And wory make our cing for the city, Conroy is limited to stunts. Even while PR director at Rossmor in Walnut Creek, he had a topless dancer from North Beach pictured on the rotating unisphere at the entrance of the famed retirement community. "I thought I would be canned on my first stunt," says Conroy, "but instead I got a salary increase and a warning." Still, Conroy hiked Rossmoor traffic up to 100,000 visitors a year.

"The Concord boxing card should be an lively one," he says. "Tommy Evans, the Richmond heavyweight is an exciting fighter. He's a puncher and this turns on boxing fans. They want to see knockouts just like baseball fans like to see balls hit out of the park."

Conroy added, "Sacramento has a fantastic boxing setup and accounts for 75 percent of the Northern California boxing revenue. They draw 4,000 fans for every card and gross $47,000. Concord can do the same because the fight fans are here in the area. We haven't seen them at the Pavilion yet — for the symphonies and other middle - of - the - road shows do not attract them. They're home watching boxing on the big tube."

The PR man repeated, "Boxing is my greatest challenge. We have but one week to sell 8,000 tickets.."

SR swimmers defeat Foothill

San Ramon continued its winning ways as it easily defeated Foothill, 102-50, in an East Bay Athletic League swimming meet yesterday afternoon.

San Ramon won all but two events, the 50 and 100 freestyles, which were won by Foothill's Denise Knauer.

Two San Ramon swimmers were double winners. Nancy Downs won the 200 freestyle and the 500 freestyle, while teammate Diane Giddens took the 200 individual medley and the 100 breaststroke.

Other individual winners for the Wolves were Lori Bottom, who won the 100 butterfly and Lisa Thompson, winner of the 100 backstroke.

Cards' Lofton helps Benjamin

STANFORD — For every great passer to come out of Stanford, there has been, not surprisingly, a great receiver.

Guy Benjamin leads college football's passers now, with 1,702 yards and 13 touchdowns, and is the first to point out he wouldn't be on top without the talented group of receivers led by James Lofton.

"I believe the pro scouts consider him the best receiver in the country. I certainly can't conceiver of there being a better one," says Bill Walsh, who became Stanford coach this year after ten seasons as an assistant in the National Football League.

"James is potentially the best receiver I've worked with, and we had five Pro Bowl receivers when I was with the Cincinnati Begals," Walsh adds.

Lofton, a senior, has 38 receptions for 699 yards and nine touchdowns this year. He caught only 15 passes over his first two varsity seasons when he was playing behind Tony Hill, now with the Dallas Cowboys.

Bill McColl, Chris Burford, Gene Washington, Randy Vataha, and Bob Moore are some of the other ends who in their college days caught passes from Stanford quarterbacks such as Frankie Albert, John Brodie, Jim Plunkett, and Mike Boryla.

Walsh didn't get to see Lofton in spring practice, since Lofton was starring then in track. The versatile athlete is a world-class long jumper, with a personal best of 26 feet, 9 inches, and a sprinter.

"I have been fortunate in that my track and football development have been complimentary," says Lofton, who also finds his field of study, industrial engineering, compatible with football. "They're both systematic. In math and statistics, you have to solve things in a systematic approach. In football, it's more or less trying to find a way to solve a problem and score."

Walsh compare Lofton to the Bengals' Isaac Curtis, who was a champion sprinter in track, and says, "I've seen what Isaac could do in football and knew there was no reason James couldn't do it."

Lofton has six touchdown catches in the last three games for the Cardinals, 5-2. His total of nine, with four games remaining, ties the Stanford record set by Eric Cross in 1972.

Lofton is the Pacific-8 Conference's leading receiver and number four in the nation.

Two of his teammates, D arrin Nelson and Bill Kellar, have more than 30 catches, and as Benjamin says, "The defenses can't gang up on James or anyone else."

Lou Gehrig hit four home runs for the New York Yankees in the 1928 World Series. Gehrig's accomplishment still stands as the record for a four-game series.

the goldenstein
danville's hofbräuhaus

Roll out the barrels! Strike up the band! Put on your polka shoes and dance if you can.

Such is the "beir garten" poetry that pours from Danville's hofbrauhaus — The Golden Stein.

Anyone with a name like Anton Shreieck or Eric Wilhelm would feel right at home in this authenic German restaurant located in "The Village" on the upper deck of this wooden clad mall.

To get there you have to pound your way along the boardwalk through window-shoppers' heaven until reaching an outdoor escalator that zooms to the second level.

It's a quaint place with a warm cozy atmosphere that reaches from a brightly colored interior to an alfresco dining area for those who prefer fresh air with their meals.

The owners, Johanna and Gunter Von Kotze went to a lot of trouble to bring the best of their home city Berlin and highlights from other parts of Germany in full view of their customers.

A huge wooden door with the words "Willkommen Zum Golden Stein" carved into the doorway opens to a room buzzing with German speaking waitress dressed in "Dirndels" and other garb that completes the traditional costume. There's an enormous hand-painted mural that depicts a gay Bavarian scene with a glimpse of the Alps outlining an azure sky. The hand-painted scenery encompasses the entire dining area which is sectioned off into two parts by a raised deck where folks packed around two-inch thick wooden tables get an unobstructed view of the dance floor.

It is said that the scenes on the walls were painted directly from those pictured on beir steins brought over to the States.

Scattered about the walls is a variety of Bavarian "do dads" ranging from a smiling elk's head (the real thing) to a sophisticated cuckoo clock and a collection of 200 personalized mugs. One wooden stein that is about three feet tall sits in the middle of the room and is used as a table to write down reservations.

Dinner is served by candlelight beneath high beamed ceilings and an accordion player roams from table to table playing such favorites as "The Happy Wanderer" and "Eidlewise."

The menu is written in German and offers such dishes as "Holsteiner Schnitze (breaded veal cutlet with egg), "Burgermeister Platte" (knockwurst, smoked pork chops, sauerbraten, suaerkraut, potatoes.)

All meals are served with soup or salad, potatoes and vegetables. They are cooked by an authenic German chef using recipes from the old country. One side dish which gets an "A+" in my book is called "Rotkohl" — better known to Americans as candied red cabbage and bacon.

The selection of beers at the Golden Stein is unmatched anywhere in the Bay Area. They have Dortmunder, Becks, Lowenbrau, Dinkelacker, Heineken, Optimator, Dortmunder Ritter and Michelob to mention a few.

"There are other 'McDonald-type' German Restaurants in area," said assistant manager Terry Johnson, "but this is one of the few true ones around."

Johnson said "Oktober fest" was a big success pulling in several hundred every day.

Basically it's a happy place where one can go for romantic dining or sit on the outdoor deck and sip a beer or eat a Reuben sandwich.

They are open Monday and Tuesday from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.; Wednesday and Thursday from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m.; Friday and Saturday from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m.; and on Sunday from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Live music is featured Friday through Sunday and you better get there early because the place gets packed.

Business booms at La Mexicana

DUBLIN — "La Mexicana" is a hot new restaurant that opened at the end of last month and business is booming according to assistant manager Pat Everett.

Located in the Lucky shopping center at the corner of San Ramon Road and Alcosta Boulevard, La Mexicana features fine cuisine home-cooked according to specifications set by our neighbors south of the border.

The Chef Leonard Acevedo, formerly at the Fish Place, is experienced in both American and Mexican dishes. He specializes in chilie releno but he also features Picadillo Sencillo — a special bacon-wrapped sirloin steak served with rice, beans and tortillas.

La Mexicana seats 130 and it has a banquet room that holds 50. The three family operation had the chairs custom made in Mexico and they consist of solid mahogany and leather.

A mellow atmosphere mingles between windows and arch ways set off light collored walls with rough wood trim. A bar made of fancy in-laid tile work serves wine and beer and specializes in wine margueritas.

Stop by and join the folks who have had a taste of the place and keep coming back.

D.Q. is fixin' breakfast for the neighbors

LIVERMORE — Fran Rupley has added a new twist to the Dairy Queen business for those early risers who want to grab a quick hearty breakfast on the way to work.

Starting on Monday, the Dairy Queen located at 2164 Second St. will be offering a steal of a deal for folks who wake up with hunger pains but don't have time to fry a couple eggs.

If you're one of those people, stop by the D.Q. and let expert chef Marie Medeiros do the cooking for you. Starting at sunrise 7 any weekday, Marie will muster up one egg (any style) plus bacon or sausage, hash browns or an English muffin for a meager 99 pennies. And for just $1.29, hungry customers can grab an extra egg with the exact same dish. Besides that the folks at the Dairy Queen will put all those breakfast delights wrapped neatly in a package to go. Now that's what's called a good neighbor breakfast for the morning munchies.

The "Good Neighbor Breakfast" also features bakery fresh sweet rolls and they'll be put in package as you hurry off to the morning rush.

And for those bodies who don't rise until 10:30, the Good Neighbor Breakfast will still be offered until Marie puts the eggs back in the fridge at 11 bells.

Just in case ou don't get your buns out of bed and make it to the D.Q. by the 11 o'clock breakfast deadline, Marie can pop a rib eye steak sandwich on the grill for you or one of the three sizes of brazier burgers the D.Q. is known for.

The Dairy Queen is open until 10 p.m. Sunday through Thursday and until the clock strikes 11 on Friday and Saturday nights.

And don't forget they have 20 different flavors of milk shakes in addition to any wild combination you can dream up.

Marie Medeiros will be fixing D.Q.'s new breakfast.

Dining out

Feasting by the ol' oak tree

The Boundary Oak restaurant in Walnut Creek offers a variety of flavors to savor, an outstanding view plus elegant decor reminiscent of early California ranch style with Spanish overtones.

It is situated high on a hill overlooking the Walnut Creek Golf Course. The address is 3800 Valley Vista Road.

The oak tree for which the restaurant was named is over 200 years old. This venerable tree was a boundary marker during Spanish land grant days, according to Shonie Aki the restaurant manager.

In 1868, the restaurant site was part of Rancho San Miguel. During construction of the golf course, Indian artifacts from the Bolbone tribe were uncovered.

Lunch, dinner and Sunday brunches are served. Banquet rooms for 1000 are available. Lunch is served from 11:30 a.m. to 3 p.m., dinner from 5 to 11 p.m., Sunday brunch from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Phone (415) 935-8121 for reservation.

And now the food. Master Chef Jack Mok, two Soux Chefs (second in command) and other staff members have definitely discovered the secret code on how to perfect the culinary art.

Ever try baked onion soup? The Boundary Oak's variety is concocted into Super Soup. Exquisite!

Salads are served on chilled plates accompanied by chilled forks. Fresh cauliflower niblets are nestled among other salad goodies. The house dressing is a never-to-be-forgotten honey-flavored treat. Soup and salad accompany entrees. A complimentary dessert, plus other choices, are offered. (Last time I was there, Cherries Jubilee was the complimentary dessert ... made tableside by the waitress.)

Varieties of seafood and steak plus prime rib on weekends are offered on the dinner menu. Lobster and chicken may be added next month, Aki reported.

Dinner prices range from $10.95 to $7.75.

Chef specials are available for dinner. I tried his Filet of Sole Oscar which turned out to be one of the best palate pleasers I ever experienced. The filet mignon is souffle tender.

One of the best flavor treats at lunch time is the Monte Cristo sandwich. This is a warm, three-deck affair with ham and turkey tucked between layers with other goodies. Then the whole thing is dipped in batter and fried quickly to a golden brown. A tart sauce is served on the side to enhance this succulent sandwich.

For Sunday brunch, they provide everything in the world to tempt you. A bevy of fresh fruits ,salads, cheeses, meats, eggs, relishes and pastries are available.

Service is good and the staff well-trained and friendly.

Alisal's 'Great Pumpkin'

Students at Alisal School in Pleasanton gather 'round a huge pumpkin trying to guess its weight. The student who comes closest will get the pumpkin and the winner of the contest will be announced at noon today. Presenting a ticket here is Sue Butzin, an officer in the Alisal School PTA, which is also sponsoring an Italian Night dinner tonight. Dinner will be served from 5 to 8 p.m. in the multi-purpose room. PTA President Bonnie Roberts says there'll also be a special pumpin walk. Dinner prices are $1 for adults and 50 cents for students. Now the question is, will the winner be able to lug that big pumpkin home today?

Move to stop KKK

By DENISE M. HOLT
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Calling the Ku Klux Klan a "vigilante group," the American Civil Liberties Union said today it was seeking a temporary restraining order in U.S. District Court to halt Klan patrols along the Mexican border.

Ramona Ripstron, the ACLU's Southern California executive director, told a news conference that the Klan is being indiscriminate in identifying whom they believe to be illegal aliens crossing the border.

"The Klan is just looking at a person with brown skin and making any assumption they want," she said.

The plaintiffs in the federal court petition include five Americans of Mexican descent who live in the border town of San Ysidro and cross the border frequently. The plaintiffs claim they have been intimidated by the KKK during their crossings.

The petition also seeks to prohibit Klan members from carrying guns or other weapons and stopping or interrogating any persons.

Joining Miss Ripston at the news conference were representatives of various Southern California civil rights organizations who demanded that the federal Immigration and Naturalization Service and President Carter denounce the Klan activities. They also asked for immediate removal of the KKK from the border and a federal investigation.

Al Juarez, representative of One Stop Immigration, said if the Klan's activities are not curbed violence may result.

"The only rational, logical, sane answer is self - defense," he said.

"This vigilante activity by the KKK at the border means they'll be in Watts or Compton next," said Deacon Alexander, spokesman for the National alliance Against Racist and Political Repression. Watts and Compton are predominantly black suburbs of Los Angeles.

"The KKK is fanning the flames of racism when integration is what we should be working for," said Jackie Goldberg of the Integration Project, a local group which is an intervenor in the cith schools integration court case.

Sirens will blare Friday

Sirens will wail, and they won't be beautiful ones either, this Friday at 11 a.m. in the Valley.

These sirens don't inhabit rocks and sing to passing sailors, but make lots of dreadful noise to warn people about a disaster. This will be a test only.

Expect a steady one - minute blast followed by a minute of silence and then a minute of rise and fall noise.

During an actual emergency, the sirens would sound for three to five minutes. A steady blast would denote a peacetime emergency while wavering or short intermittent sirens would warn of an immediate attack.

Porno law would tab parents

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House - passed bill aimed at the child pornography trade would penalize parents who knowingly allow their children to be used by others for pornography or prostitution as well as penalize those who used them.

The bill, approved Tuesday by a 420-0 vote, would prohibit the interstate transportation of boys with the intent of having them engage in prostitution. The transportation of girls is already illegal under the Mann Act.

The prohibition against using children in acts of "sexually explicit conduct for the purposes of the promotion of printed or filmed matter depicting such ... conduct" would apply to those under the age of 16. Maximum penalties for offenses would be 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

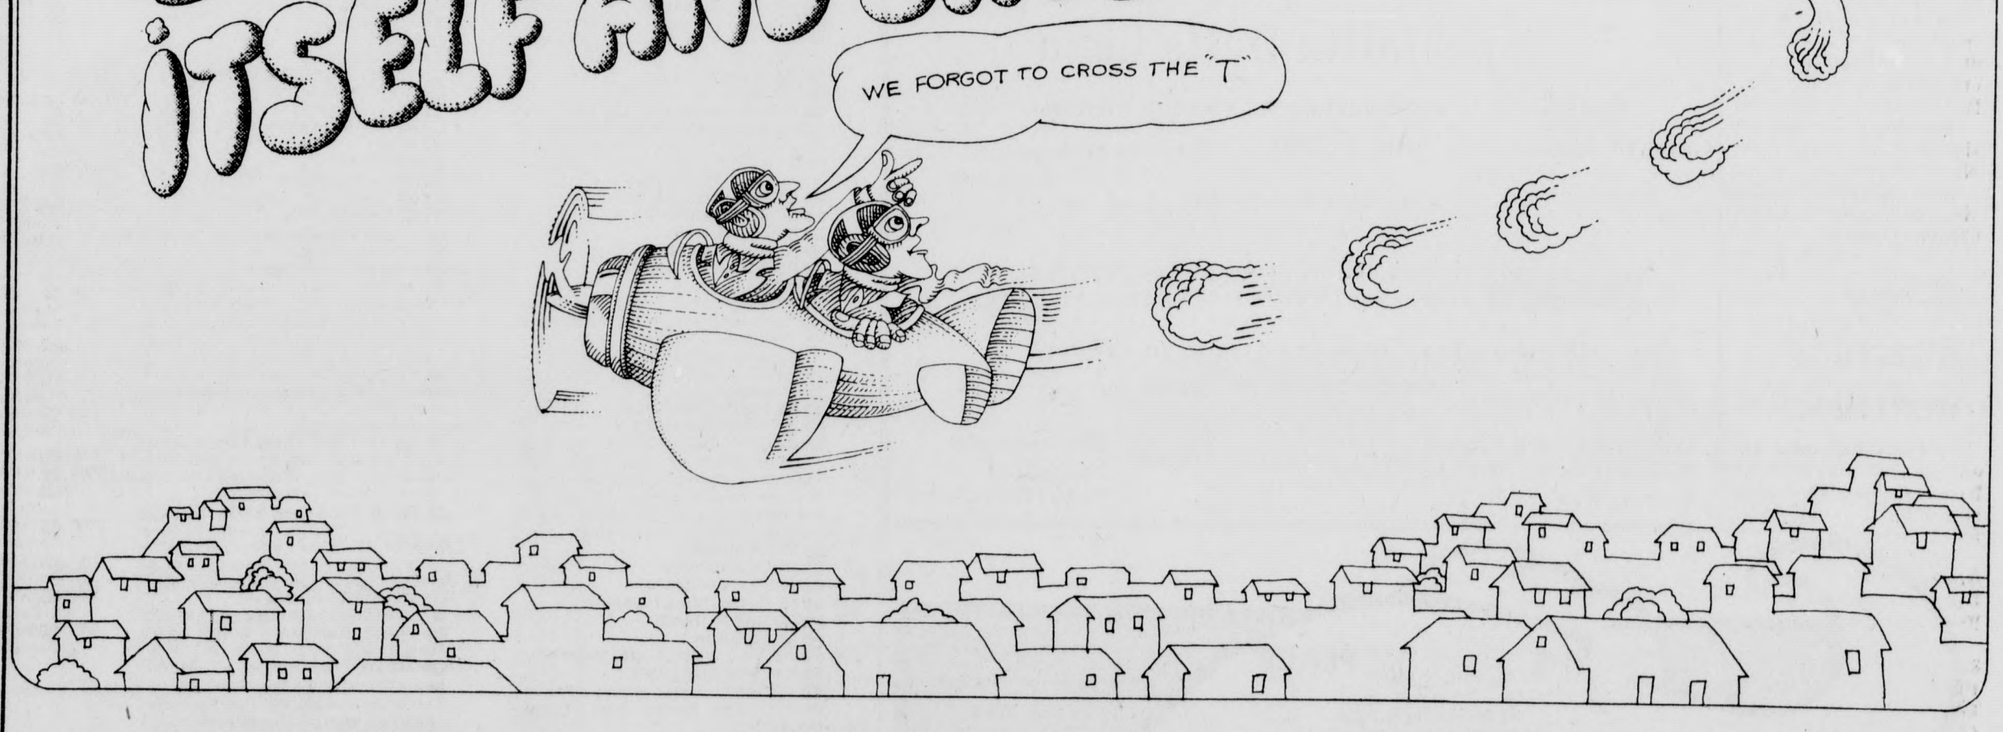

The Senate also has passed legislation aimed at child pornography. Differences between the House and Senate bills will be worked out by a joint conference committee.

Those who transport or sell the material produced would not be covered by the proposed sanctions.

A separate measure penalizing distributors and sellers of pornography in which children are used, as well as those involved in the production, was passed by the House Sept. 29 on a 375 - to - 12 vote.

Existing anti - pornography laws apply mostly to the mailing, distribution and importation of obscene materials and not to the use and abuse of children in their production.

That's news that's worth spreading around. The fact that insulating the attic can save the average home owner at least $50 a year in heating costs, means that over the long haul, attic insulation will not only pay for itself, but will save money...and energy...too.

And in these days of energy shortages, we'd better save all we can.

Here's another plus. PG&E will make insulating your home easier by arranging free estimates from two qualified contractors, to help you get the right price. If you request it, we'll inspect the work when it's done. And we'll give you a certificate of installation to R-19 standards, which may come in handy if you ever decide to sell your home.

All in all, you've got a lot to gain. So if you want help in contractor referrals, or more information, call PG&E's Energy Conservation Center, toll free, at 800-792-8000, Monday through Friday, 8 AM to 8 PM. (If your telephone area code is 805, call collect to 415-543-2073.) Or fill out and mail the coupon or return it with your bill payment.

Do it now, before winter sets in. So you can feel warm all over about the money you'll save.

SR taxing district faces test

MARTINEZ — The Local Agency Formation Commission (LAFCO) of Contra Costa County will not have any sphere of influence hearings in November.

When hearings do resume, the formation of County Service Area M-24 will be considered. This area lies on the east side of Interstate-680, roughly 2000 feet south of Bollinger Road's eastern extension in the San Ramon area.

The proposed county service area will cover 119 acres. The service deals with street lighting and landscape maintenance.

Proponents for the new county service area are Shapell Industries, P.O. Box 9020, Sunnyvale, Ca. 94086.

The creation of the service area is a condition of development of this approved subdivision. The subdivision's environmental review process has been completed by the county.

This proposed subdivision (4820) is in the Central Contra Costa Sanitary District, the East Bay Municipal Utility District and County Service Area R-7 (recreation and park services).

The reason for the service area formation is to maintain a 7.6 acre linear park system which will extend through the proposed subdivision.

County Service Area R-7 is not in the position at this time to abosrb this function. R-7 is unable to do so since it is in the acquisition and preliminary development stage of an areawide park system.

The LAFCO board recommends approval of the county service area formation, according to their agenda.

A county service area is a taxing unit, not a government agency, where a board of supervisors extend a service to an area (such as lighting, etc.). In return, that area pays a special tax for that service.

Health talks coming up in San Ramon

SAN RAMON — The Health Dialogue Series of monthly health education programs are again being presented at the Family Medical Center of Valley Memorial Hospiatal as a community service.

The series is designed to promote understanding of many common illnesses and health problems.

Included in the 1977-78 series are:

★ Living with Arthritis, Nov. 9 at 10 a.m.
★ The Five-Day Program to Stop Smoking, Jan. 24 at 7:30 p.m.
★ Physical Fitness for Everyone, Feb. 9 at 10 a.m.
★ Health Fair, March 16 from 3-8 p.m.
★ You Are What You Eat, But What Are You Eating?, April 13 at 10 a.m.
★ Health Carnival for Kids, May 18 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

All programs are presented in the lecture room of the center located at 9260 Alcosta Blvd. There is no charge and reservations are not necessary.

Regularly scheduled programs are Childbirth Preparation classes every Wednesday evening (call 837-1382 for information), Overeaters Anonymous on Monday and Thursday evenings (call 829-5524) and Contra Costa County Immunization Clinics the first Thursday every other month (call 372-2591 for information).

Free shots for Livermore aged

Senior citizens can get free flu shots to protect against Victoria and Hong Kong type viruses at the Recreation Building located at 2466 Eighth St. in Livermore on Sunday, Nov. 6 from 9:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Administered by the Alameda County Health Department, the shots will be provided free to persons 55 years of age or older. Persons allergic to chicken eggs, chicken, chicken feathers or those with fevers should not participate.

The blood pressure clinic will resume at the Recreation Building on the first Monday of the month starting Nov. 7 from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Both clinics are co-sponsored by the Livermore Area Recreation and Park District and the Livermore Senior Citizens Center.

X-ray machine installed

SAN RAMON — A second X-ray machine has been installed at the Family Medical Center of Valley Memorial Hospital.

The addition will free the first X-ray machine with a fluoroscope to perform more complex studies.

With the addition of a second machine and X-ray room, the center will be able to keep up with the increased utilization of the X-ray department.

School stock

STANFORD (AP) — Stanford University could lose millions of dollars if it sells off its stock in firms with South African investments, the school's top fiscal officer says in recommending against the action which student protestors have demanded.

Divestiture and exclusion of such firms as a protest against apartheid racist policies would cost at least $1.4 million a year, and probably much more.

Alameda alcoholism unit meets

OAKLAND — The Alameda County Alcoholism Advisory Board will meet at noon Friday in the conference room of the Office of Commission Administration, Suite 200, 1730 Franklin St.

A discussion of implementation of Senate Bill 38 is included on the agenda with the usual items.

Jewel deal

SEATTLE (AP) — Jewel dealer Victor W. Nash, who says a scruffy robber got $2 million worth of his uninsured jewelry, was waiting Tuesday in a Seattle motel, hoping the thief will phone and offer to make a deal.

His wife, at their home in San Francisco, received a phone call early Tuesday from a man asking if they want to "make a deal" to get back the $2 million traveling gem show stolen at gun point here Monday, Nash said.

Hijackers Still Mystery

MOGADISHU, Somalia (AP) — One week after West German commandos stormed a hijacked Lufthansa jetliner at Mogadishu Airport to free 91 hostages, the true identity of the four hijackers remains a closely guarded secret.

The one terrorist who survived the raid, described as an attractive chestnut-haired woman of about 20, was reported recuperating Tuesday at Mogadishu's Medina Hospital fom gunshot wounds in her right shoulder and leg.

Diplomatic sources said the other three hijackers have been secretly buried. But beyond these reports little is known about the terrorists.

County hiring policy watched

OAKLAND — Alameda County government can improve its affirmative action program by tightening the monitoring procedures, Supervisor John George has suggested.

George, the county's first black supervisor, told The Times the county has a good affirmative action hiring and promotional program, but a closer eye has to be maintained to make sure hiring has been effective.

To tighten the monitoring, George would ask : 1) quarterly reports on the effectiveness of departmental plans; 2) separate statistics on non - permanent work programs like CETA and work study funded by the state and federal government; and 3) monthly reports relating to newly developed guidelines and procedures should be required of each department until it's obvious that agencies' affirmative action plans have become more uniform.

George wants the CETA and work study affirmative action plans separated from the county - funded permanent employees "because it's easier to hire more minorities with someone els's money," said Georges's aide, Joette Lynch. The real test is how sincere the county is in permanent hiring.

George also feels that internal complaint mechanisms about alleged job discrimination is not well known to employes and has resulted in calling outside agencies to resolve job complaints.

George is calling for an equal employment counselor in each department who is elected by departmental employees, not appointed by the department head, as is the case now. That way, employees will have more confidence the counselor will be impartial, said George.

The only thing new in George's plan on that aspect is to refine the statistical data further, said Williams.

Water levels are down in Del Valle Lake and the fish have gone to deeper and cooler depths. The big reservoir, a popular recreation facility for East Bay Regional Parks District, is expected to fill again in the spring.

Fishing is challenge in Del Valle's depths

LIVERMORE — Fishing has slacked off at Del Valle Lake recently as the declining water level continues to force fish deeper.

This happens every year as water is released from the reservoir in late summer and early fall to customers locally, as well as to customers in Alameda County Water District and Santa Clara Valley Water District.

Water from the South Bay Aqueduct is stored in Del Valle Lake and released as needed to downstream customers of the State Water Project. Zone 7 of the Alameda County Flood Control and Water Conservation District, a member of the State Water Project, supplies water wholesale to Livermore, Pleasanton, Dublin and parts of San Ramon.

The water level will return to normal next spring if the drought eases.

Meanwhile, anglers will have to vary their approach if they plan to catch their limits. The number of fish taken from Del Valle last week was listed as less than .10 per angler hour.

Livestock lecture slated in Livermore

LIVERMORE — Jean Bountis, representative for Heifer Project International, will be guest speaker for Clipper Ship of the Mariners at the First Presbyterian Church, 4th and L streets, today at 8 p.m. The public is invited.

Heifer Project has been upgrading livestock and raising the standard of living of farmers in the United States and throughout the world for 29 years.

The First Presbyterian Church, as a mission project last year, contributed $6000, and is supporting the project again this year.

Pumpkin carvers' test leads Halloween events

DUBLIN — A Jack-O-Lantern Decorating Contest will commence kick off Halloween events today at 7 p.m. at Shannon Community Center, 11600 Shannon Ave., Dublin.

The Valley Community Services District Recreation Department (VCSD) is sponsoring the program.

The decorating contest is open for ages 3-5, 6-8, 9-11 and 12-14. Prizes will be awarded for most original pumpkin, smallest, largest and ugliest. Pumpkins must be at Shannon Park no later than 5 p.m. Oct. 27.

A Pumpkin Pie Eating Contest will follow at 7:30 p.m. Ages groups are 13-17, 18 and up. Pies will be provided. Awards will be presented to the fastest pie eaters in the Valley.

Horror movie fans can view a special showing of "Horror of Dracula" with Peter Cushing, Christopher Lee and Michael Gough at 8 p.m.

For further information contact the VCSD Recreation Department at 828-7711.

Grand National opens Friday at Cow Palace

A record 2,700 entries are slated to compete for $150,000 in horse show prize and premium money at the Grand National Rodeo, Horse Show and Livestock Exposition Oct. 28 to Nov. 6 at the San Francisco Cow Palace.

Miss Grand National, Erika Hazen of Pleasanton, has also entered the horse show competition in addition to handling her duties as reigning show queen.

The Grand National, with its three-shows-in-one format, combines the largest show west of the Mississippi River with rodeo action and an educational livestock exposition.

Three defending champions in the $10,000 events are expected to return this year. They are DiAnn Lundy in Jumper Sweepstakes, Linda Hough in the Hunter Grand Prix Classic and Bobby Ingersol in the Stock Horse Classic. A new category has been added this year, the Golden State Amateur-Owner Hunter Grand Prix Classic.

Admission prices range from $3 to $7 with half-price matinees for juniors under 16 years and senior citizens on Sunday, Oct. 30 and Saturday, Nov. 5. Shows are at 8 p.m. weeknights, 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. Saturdays and 2 p.m. and 7 p.m. Sundays.

Chabot students score in capital speech test

Chabot College Valley Campus students won two individual firsts, two runnerup awards and captured third-place in sweepstakes at the Los Rios Invitational Speech Tournament held at Sacramento City College earlier this month.

Twenty-five schools, including both community colleges and four-year schools, participated. Three-hundred students were involved in the tournament.

Dennis Gleason and Lance Koncher each placed first in communications analysis and oral interpretation, respectively. Sandra Tobin earned a second-place award in communications analysis and Sandra Lohsen and James Kauth were fourth in the drama duet category.

Chabot Valley won third-place in sweepstakes amongst all school entered.

City to ask residents if recycle plan backed

LIVERMORE — Would residents take advantage of recycling service if the city offered it?

A random survey will be taken in the next few weeks to test homeowners' feelings about recycling to see if such a service would be used. Assistant City Manager Ed Schilling will be working with trained surveyors prior to starting the survey.

They are hoping to get answers from between 200 and 250 residents to see if they currently recycle such materials as glass, newspapers or cans. And if a free home pick-up of recyclables were offered, would homeowners take advantage of the service.

Or would residents use a common container at some additional cost for recyclable materials, if offered.

The survey comes as the Recycling Task Force works on a proposed system to pick up recyclable materials every two weeks, coinciding with regular garbage collection day for each household.

A new processing facility at I-580 and Vasco Road, property currently owned by Oakland Scavenger, is being considered.

The city is undertaking the recycling proposals in response to the state's request that communities cut down their garbage and trash by 25 per cent.
